TROY ADULT HOME AREA OVERVIEW

Troy is a city in New York State and is located in Rensselaer County. The city is located on the western edge of Rensselaer County and on the eastern bank of the Hudson River. Troy is the county seat of Rensselaer County. Being located close to the cities of Albany and Schenectady, it forms the region known as the Capital District. It is one of the three major centers that comprise the Albany Metropolitan Statistical Area (MSA), which has a population of 1,170,483.

Today, Troy is home to Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, the oldest private engineering and technical university in the USA founded in 1824.

According to the United States Census Bureau, the city has a total area of 11.0 square miles of which 10.4 square miles is land and 0.6 square miles is water.

Troy is located several miles north of Albany near the junction of the Erie and Champlain canals, via the Hudson River and is the terminus of the New York Barge Canal. It is the distribution center for a large area.

The western edge of the city is flat along the river, and then steeply slopes to higher terrain to the east.

Troy, like many older industrial cities, has been battered by industrial decline and the migration of jobs to the suburbs. Nevertheless, the presence of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute is helping Troy develop a small high-technology sector, particularly in video game development. The downtown core also has a smattering of advertising and architecture firms, and other creative businesses attracted by the area's distinctive architecture. RPI is the city's largest private employer.

The Capital District, also known as the Capital Region, refers to the metropolitan area that surrounds Albany, which is the capital of New York. The Capital District is the fourth largest metropolitan region in the state and the 45th largest in the country with a population of 1,170,483 in 2013.

The Capital District has become known as a major anchor of "Tech Valley", the moniker that describes the tech focused region of eastern New York State.

The Rensselaer County Economic Development Partnership is a robust partnership that relies on the investment and collaboration of investors and regional partners whose purpose is to build a successful and sustainable economy in Rensselaer County. The partners consist of a wide range of public and private businesses and organizations that represent wide range of industries.
